

ABSTRACT

A composite vehicle panel made up of at least three layers of materials including a first layer, a middle layer, and a second layer, wherein the first layer
5 and the second layer are bonded through at least one aperture in the middle layer, thereby allowing the manufacture of the composite panel in a single-step process.